BELT LINE MEN IN COURT.

For Driving Herds of Horses Over Un-improved Streets.

Lawyer John Ridout, counsel for the Belt Line railroad, appeared in the Police Court this morning and defended four of the company's employes, against whom charges of violating the police regulations had been preferred by the pclice. The defendants in the icur cases were Thomas Sweeney, Courtney Baker, William Davis and William Buchanan, and it was charged that they drove herds of horses over an unimproved street, in violation of the regulation of the Commissioners. The horses in question were driven from the 11th street stables to the place where the horses are changed, near 7th and P streets, and the most convenient and shortest route was ever streets some of which are not improved. So much dust was caused by the constant use of the streets that com-plaints were made to the police, and the plaints were made to the police, and the arrests resulted. When the case was called in court coun sel made a motion to quash the informa-tions, on the ground that the regulation is an unreasonable one, and also for the rea-son that it gives the chief of police unre-stricted power in the matter of granting permits.

After a short argument Judge Kimball informed counsel that he thought there was nothing in the point that the regulation is an unreasonable one, and counsel then proceeded to argue upon the other question. In support of his claim authorities were cited, but before the ccurt reached any conclusion counsel said that there would be no further occasior to make arrests. The company's employes, he said, will go over improved streets hereafter, and with this understanding Judge Kimball and with this understanding Judge Kimball accepted the personal bonds of the men charged.

An Appeal for Taylor.

Among the letters sent to the President with the petition for the commutation of the sentence of Thomas J. Taylor was one from Dr. William A. Hammond, addressed to Taylor's attorneys, in which he says: "I hope that his excellency, the President, may see his way clear to interfere in Taymay see his way clear to interfere in Taylor's behalf to the extent of commuting his punishment to imprisonment. He does not belong to the criminal class, however; his intentions are generally good, but his power of self-control is weak, and he is extremely liable to lose command of himself from slight exciting causes to such an exteat as not to be fully conscious of what he is doing. If the ends of justice could not be perfectly assured by imprisonment I would perfectly assured by imprisonment I would not in favor of commuting Taylor's punishment. I hope, as I have said before, for executive interposition between him and the extreme penalty."

AIDING THE STRIKERS

Successful Lawn Party Held for Their Benefit.

Gonzaga College Campus Grounds, North Speeches and a Good Time in Anacos

The immense attendance last night at the lawn party given at the residence of Mr. H. A. Linger, in Anacostia, for the benefit of the striking employes of the Anacostis Railroad Company, was a tribute of a solid Conservative members of the committe which had the party in charge placed the estimate at 2,000 as the number present. There could not have been less, and it is possible there were many more. But while there was this great outpouring, the measure of public sympathy practically extended was, far in excess of that, for hundreds, and some say several thousands, of tickets were sold to persons who could not find it were sold to persons who could not find it convenient to attend.

The lawn where the gathering occurred lies between Harrison street and the river, and filuminated, as it was last night with hundreds of Chinese lanterns, could easily be seen from the entire southeastern section of the city, from the navy yard to the Congressional cemetery, while those living beyond, and almost as far as Benning, could obtain a magnificent view as well.

To the minds of many persons the scene suggested was a glimpse of fairy land, and a visit to the lawn itself had the effect of enhancing the beautiful illusion.

Everybody There. Everybody present was delighted with the Mair. The Columbia Typographical Union had, in accordance with the promise to attend, secured a number of Knox's big coaches, and the members had brought with them their wives, daughters and sweetwith them their wives, daughters and sweethearts, as also an Italian organ-grinder, with his instrument of music, which they had picked up on the way, and whom they desired to enliven the trip to and from the grounds. A big delegation from the bureau of engraving and printing, many of whom were also accompanied by ladies, were there, and hundreds of the residents of Anacostia, both ladies and gentlemen attended. The members of the various committees, who had brought the event so happily in augurated by Messrs. T. P. Green, Dr. George Havenner, W. C. Van Hoy, J. M. Keating and other enterprising citizens, to the magnificent conclusion eitizens, to the magnificent conclusion reached, and including those gentlemen, reached, and including those gentlemen, were showered with congratulations.

While it is true that refreshments early became exhausted, no one growled, or even murmured about that, and from the empty eating stands they traced their steps to the vicinity of a charming arbor, which had been admirably arranged for the use of the speakers, and around this the mutitude assembled.

Speeches Followed.

Packed like the typical sardines in a box they listened for several hours to speeches by those who wished the strikers to gain a victory.

The meeting was in charge of the Pro-The meeting was in charge of the Protective Street Railway Union, and the president of that body. Mr. Thomas J. Lawrence, presided, and made a. fcw remarks. Mr. Lawrence was followed by Mr. H. A. Linger, who delivered an exceedingly graceful address of welcome, and told all present to feel that they were entirely at home. Previous to the assembling of the great crowd Mr. Linger had, it is understood, said that so welcome were those who desired to aid the striking employes to the use of his grounds, that should they trample down every rose bush he owned he would not compiain.

Other speakers were Messrs. T. P. Green, who came forward in response to repeated calls, as did also Dr. George Havenner and President Tracy of the Typographical Union, ex-Judge McCreary of the Department of the Interior, Mr. James Trainor, Messrs. Tibbetts, Triplett, Oyster, Rev. H. T. Stevenson, Capt. R. E. Hardwicke, L. H. Rodier, Wm. McDaniel, Wm. Heide, Frank T. Dent, George Roberts and Mrs. Jennie L. Monroe.

Tiding Over.

The net receipts of the benefit cannot be told definitely for a few days, as several make returns before that time, but they will be sufficient to keep the strikers from want for a week or two, at least, and meanwhile the Protective Street Railway Union will also see that they get their rights as members of their body.

should the strike continue for a few days longer, as it almost certainly will, and it become necessary to do so, other entertainments for the benefit of the men will, it is said, be arranged.

To morrow the strikers will attend in a body the Anacostia Baptist Church, whose pastor last night assured them that contrary to reports which have been circulated his sympathies are with them.

Capt. Mount Burled at Arlington.

The remains of Capt. John F. Mount, late of the third United States artillery, who died Sunday last, were laid to rest at Arlington during the past week. Capt. Mount was a brave officer, and his war record obtained the unusual recognition of commission in the regular army. When the war broke out he left Albany, N. Y., the war broke out he left Alhany, N. Y., with the Albany Burgesses corps for three months, re-entering service in the one hundred and thirteenth New York infantry, being afterward transferred to the seventh New York artillery, and was successively promoted for gallant conduct until he was honorably mustered out with the rank of major. He served in the defenses of Washington, in the Army of the Potomac and at Baltimore and in the vicinity, being greatly beloved by those serving under him and highly respected by his superior officers. He was appointed second lieutenant, third artillery, February 23, 1866, promoted to first lieutenant July 28, 1866, and captain December 3, 1884. He had lived aptain December 3, 1884. He had lived for a number of years in Washington and had a large circle of friends. His wife and daughter survive him.

Fined for Cruelty to a Horse. John T. Campbell, the lumber dealer, was defendant in the Police Court this morning in a case of cruelty to animals, it being charged that he permitted one of his drivers, a colored man named John Simms, to drive an animal with a sore shoulder. The record of the case showed that the colored record of the case showed that the colored man had sworn out the warrant, which was issued in Anacostia by Justice Carroll W. Smith, who appeared as a witness in the case. While the record showed that Simms had sworn out the warrant, Simms said he had no knowledge of having done so. He went in an office with the justice, who got him to touch a pen, but he had no idea or intention of swearing out a warrant Justice Smith was the principal witness in the case for the prosecution.

Mr. Campbell explained the condition of the horse, as did other witnesses.

Judge Miller said that the case was a terrible one, and imposed a fine of $20, which was paid.

Good Work Done by the Mission for Erring Women. Mission, 604 H street northwest, Thursday was unusually well attended by visitors. Mrs. La Fetra, Mrs. Luckett and other members of the official board were present. Mrs. Mary E. Catlin led in prayer; after the usual hymns 'Mrs Marion Guild Walford read a paper touching on woman's influence in purifying the cial systems of our great cities.

Mrs. Luckett, one of the ladies connected with the Hope and Help Mission, says she thinks there should be an organization formed for the protection of young girls, the purpose being to prevent them falling into the sacres and pitfalls which meet them. She says she has seen young girls with innocent faces on the street so dressed as to appear indecent. Such cases a this, in the new organization method, would taken care of and not allowed to appear on the streets again similarly attired. At another time she saw a young girl with a gentleman on the street cars and could not prevent herself hearing a conversation which would eventually lead her into trouble. This girl might be saved future pain and her friends possible exposure by the interposition of this new charitable organization. "We have organizations to prevent cruelty to animals and small children; why not one to help young women who may be in peril?" said Mrs. Luckett.

The appropriation allowed the Hope and Help Mission by Congress is iradequate, and the managers are dependent on contributions for the greater part of the experses. The mission is an outgrowth of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and was conducted under the auspices of that association until 1883, when it was on the streets again similarly attired. At and was conducted under the auspices of that association until 1893, when it was surrendered to the care of three women, who bore the responsibility of the mission for several years. The doors of the home for eight years have never been closed, night or day, and the cry of the helplass and needy woman or girl is never disre-sarded.

This mission has rescued and placed upon This mission has rescued and placed upon a good, moral standing many poor women and girls who would, it is believed, have gone to utter ruin, had it not been for its outstretched arm. The first inmate of this home was a girl from the country. Her father's friend betrayed her, and she sought this city with the avowed purpose of living a dissolute life, thinking, as many do, that there was no redemption from her accial sin She approached a his-coated do, that there was no redemption from her social sin. She approached a blue-coated officer of the city and asked to be directed to a "respectable" disreputable house. This policeman took her to the Hope and Help Mission and told her that was the place for her. And now that girl, who thought no honorable person would recognize her, is a good wife and a true woman. That was the beginning of the work done by this mission.

Although Col. Perry Carson was booked to speak, he was not there. Lewis Willis presided, and in his speech calling the meeting to order said that the meeting was for the purpose of preparing for republican success in 1896. He believed McKinley would carry off the prize.

Mr. Willis then introduced, W. C. Cox who has been a member of the Mississippi who has been a member of the Mississ:ppi legislature for several terms. He said that delegates should be sent to the national convention who would demand American citizenship for the District. Men should be selected who would not sell out. or Mr. Cox's speech the chairman introduced the first vice president of the league, Mr. Robert H. Keys, who was received with much cheering, but declined to make a speech. Mr. Keys' friends are backing him as the delegate to the next convention in the place of Perry Carson.

The secretary of the association, S. E. Jones, was the next speaker. His preference was for McKinley. He spoke of the attitude of McKinley towards the negro, and said that McKinley had immortalized himself by declaring that, while he was governor, no negro should be lynched in Ohio. He said that McKinley would not honor the requisition of the governor of Kentucky for the return of a negro to that state until he had been given a guarantee by Kentucky's governor that the negro would not be lynched.

MONEY IN THE FIDDLE.

Washington Man is Said to Have Left a Legacy.

A pretty little story comes eastward from Kansas relating how a benign old gentleman in Washington bequeathed a hidden legacy to his nephew, which has only a few days ago been discovered. The St. the following form of this story: "It appears that the other day Hugh McGuire, a farmer near Goddard, received a fiddle by express that had in it something more soothing to a Kansas farmer than music Two years ago his uncle, Peter Conroy, died at Washington city. Conroy was supposed to have a good pile of money saved up, and as McGuire was his only heir, he anticipated a little fortune. When Conanticipated a little fortune. When Con-roy's will was opened it was found that he left nothing to McGuire but an old fiddle he brought with him from Tralee, County Kerry, Ireland, in 1848. McGuire was so indignant he would not pay for expressing the fiddle to Kansas. Two weeks ago he dreamed one night that the fiddle was full of money. He spoke about it to his wife, and the latter, believing in dreams, appro-righted enough from her butter-and-egg and the latter, believing in dreams, appropriated enough from her butter-and-egg fund to pay $2.80 express charges on the fiddle. It has arrived, inclosed in a sealed violin case, and when examined was found to contain $1,800 in money and a deed to 160 acres of land near Clymount, Va. Not a word of explanation was with the money, and McGuire is wondering what his uncle's idea was. The instrument was torn to pleces to get the money out, but it will be glued together again and hung on the wall pleces to get the money out, but it will be glued together again and hung on the wall of McGuire's cottage as a monument to his old uncle's memory."

Inquiry among all the accessible Conroys in Washington today resulted in naught but a negative shake of the head.

"Sure," said one of them, "did a Conroy leave so much money behind him? I'll die worrying that a bit of the legacy is not coming my way."

"The only Peter Conroy I ever knew," said another, with characteristic humor, "died just before I was born."

WHOLESALE PRODUCE PRICES.

Practically Unchanged Prices-Gener ously Supplied Market. There is very little, if, indeed, any real change in the condition of the local wholesale produce market to be reported today. With very few exceptions, prices are as they were a week ago. Indeed, about the only changes noted is a slight decline in potatoes and berries and fruits, and a fall of a few cents in spring chickens. These changes, however, are to be expected, be ing due, of course, to the increased yield, and not to any decline in the demand for the products. Butter, although weak and of inferior quality, because of the heat, shows no change in prices beyond a reduc tion of half a cent in the finer grades. Eggs are still very unsatisfactory, and practically unchanged in price. Beef and other cally unchanged in price. Beef and other meats do not yet give any promise of a decline in prices. As was the case last week, the market is generously supplied, and an active demand prevailing, the market exhibits a firm, healthy tone.

The poor quality heretofore reported in the finer grades of butter continues, and the market is, therefore, weak and unsattangents. Butter as now arriving is too.

creamery, 16 to 17, and good to prime, 11 to 13; bakers' stock, 12½.
Cheese continues firm, although the quality of it, tco, is damaged by the heat.
Prices remain unchanged; for large, 10 cents a pound being asked; for fiats, 10½ and ponys, 11. and ponys, 11.

Eggs are as unsatisfactory as ever, both to dealers and purchasers, but they show no change in prices. The market, therefore, is weak. From 12 to 12½ is asked for the best goods, a cent or two less for there.

the best goods, a cent or two less for others.

The receipts during the week of spring chickens caused a break in prices, and they are selling at from 11 to 13 cents a pound. The receipts in poultry throughout have been large, although a correspondingly heavy demand is responsible for a firm, active market. Old stock of chickens, 5 to 9; ducks, 5 to 8, and geese, 4 to 7.

The market is fully supplied with vegetables and berries, and the fruits are arriving in large quantities. As a general thing, the quality of the products is very good. There is a very healthy tone noticeable in them. Cucumbers, 50 cents to $1.25 a box; kale, 20 to 35 cents a barrel; peas, $1.50 40 $2 a barrel; beans, 75 cents to $1 a box; asparagus, 50 cents to $1 a dozen; letbox; asparagus, 50 cents to $1 a dozen; let tuce, $1.50 to $2 a barrel; new Irish pota toes, 75 cents to $2 a barrel; Florida toma toes, 75 cents to $2 a barrel; Florida toma-toes, 75 cents to $1 a crate; cabbage, 50 certs to $1 a barrel; beets, $1 to $2.50 per 100 bunches; turnips, 60 to 65 cents a bar-rel; apples, 50 cents to $1.50 a barrel; Call-fornia oranges, $3.50 to $4; Messina, $3 to $5.50 a box, and Valencia, $4 to $4.50 a case; strawberries, 5 to 7 cents a quart; whortle-berries, 4 to 8; cherries, 4 to 6; raspberries, red, 10 to 12; black, 6 to 8; blackberries, 8 to 12; watermelons, $10 to $15 per 100; peaches, $1 to $1.75 a box, and 75 cents to $1 a basket; cantaloupes, $2.50 to $3.50 a barrel parrel.

Prices in beef and kindred meats remain about as quoted last week; 2½ to 5 cents a pound for live cattle; sheep, 2 to 2½; lambs, 3½ to 5; cows with calves, $20 to $40 each; calves, 2½ to 4 cents a pound; country sugar-cured hams, 9 to 11; large 6½ to 7.

HE IS WANTED.

Chattanooga Worked by a Young Man Hailing From Here.

A young man faultlessly attired, with attractive manners and pleasing address, who represented himself as J. P. Givens. attorney-at-law, recently of Washington according to dispatches cut quite a figure in Chattanooga, Tenn., Wednesday, and now the merchants of that city are anxiously looking for him and the police and detectives are on his trail. The alleged Mr. Givens, although a total strange in the thriving southern town, introduced himself to J. B. Frazier, one of the leading lawyers of that city, and proposed the formation of a copartnership. His offer was, of course, rejected, but learning that Mr. Frazier intended absenting himself from Chattanooga for a few days the young sharper proceeded to make capital out of his self-imposed relationship with the lawyer. Hiring a bicycle he went the rounds of the leading mercantile houses of Chattanooga, after first depositing a draft for $1,500, drawn by himself on the Ohio National Bank of this city, on the strength of which one of the business men indorsed a check for $15, which he immediately cashed. In his dealings with other merchants he represented himself as J. B. Frazier's partner, and all the checks he presented in payment for goods were inhimself to J. B. Frazier, one of the leading Frazier's partner, and all the checks he presented in payment for goods were indorsed "J. P. Frazier." The signatures were clever forgeries and no suspicion of crooked dealing was entertained until Mr. Frazier's return to Chattanooga yesterday, when he promptly repudiated the transactions. The swindler received large quantities of goods, and as the checks presented in payment therefor were always for greater sums than their cost he pocketed quite an amount in change. No J. P. Givens appears in the city directory for the current year, and nothing seems to be known here of the young man who is now so badly wanted in Chattanooga.

Too Long Hours for Soda Water Boys To the Editor of The Evening Star: I am glad that some one, through your valuable paper, has called attention to the overworked and poorly paid soda water boys of cur city. There is not a harder worked set of employes in this city than the boys mentioned. They are expected to be at their places of business not later than 8 a.m., and from that time until 11:30 p.m. are kept on the jump; the hotter the weather the more work for them, and it is seven days every week for the most of them. Our society to prevent animals from being overworked might start a branch for the benefit of the soda water boys.
